Contact Conference
March 15th-16th, 2007

Radisson Hotel, Saskatoon, SK

For Career Practitioners & HR Specialists

Baby boomers leaving the workforce are taking their institutional knowledge out the door, but at the same time they're leaving that door open for young workers to walk in with new ideas and ambitious plans. For career practitioners in education, government and private practice, knowing which opportunities are available is key to connecting in an energized labour market. For human resource managers, challenges include retaining older workers, recruiting younger workers, and establishing an organizational culture that maximizes both generations.

March 15th – Pre-Conference

Explore the knowledge and information our National Sector Councils and Provincial Associations have to add to your toolbox. Learn up-to-date labour market information and the wealth of resources available to you both on a national and provincial basis!

March 16th – The 4th Annual Career Practitioners Conference

Will look at how to use labour market information, through informational sessions highlighting the current labour boom, examples of industry attraction and retention strategies, current demographic information and a look at various career opportunities in emerging sectors.
